WPB Approves Building of 100 Cargo Planes

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Henry J. Kaiser, west coast builder of dams and ships, got the go-ahead today from Production Chief Donald M. Nelson to build a fleet of 500 70-ton "Mars" flying boats, but there were plain indications that the Navy had balked at the plan.

A WPB official, who declined to be quoted by name, acknowledged that the Navy had "been reacting all afternoon" to Nelson's announcement in the morning that Kaiser would get a letter of intent to build 100 cargo planes of the Mars type in shipyards, to be followed by 400 more if he makes good on the first batch.

A source in the middle of the situation said Nelson was determined to sign the commitment himself if the Navy would not.

Under his wartime powers, the WPB chairman had authority to direct that contracts be placed by other government agencies.

Nelson told reporters one important string was attached to his commitment to the shipbuilder, Kaiser must demonstrate, before he starts construction, that his program will not interfere with combat plane production by severely draining materials, machinery or equipment.

A second letter of intent will be issued to Kaiser, a WPB spokesman said, authorizing him to prepare designs and engineering specifications for a 200-ton flying boat, intended to be a cargo carrier vastly greater than anything in the skies.

This commitment, however, will not cover construction of the mammoth plane.

Kaiser, who came to Washington nine days ago with his idea for building big aircraft in shipyards, told reporters tonight that the swift consideration given his startling proposal by WPB "was worthy of the attention of the nation."

He promised the first plane would be produced within 10 months of the time that production drawings are complete.

Delay in Execution Of Spies Reported

By LEE CARSON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Death was overdue in a lighted cell block of the District jail tonight where six of the eight Nazi saboteurs awaited execution under the findings of President Roosevelt's military commission.

To 22-year-old Herbert Haupt, "baby" of the eight-man task force from Berlin, the Nazis reportedly owed their 11th-hour reprieve.

Not willing to approve the execution of Haupt with the other, and older, five until entirely satisfied with the verdict of the commission, the President last night reportedly ordered a delay in the death schedule for at least 24 hours.

Mr. Roosevelt said today that he had not yet finished studying the case, but he refused to comment further. He indicated that an announcement of his final decision might be made at any time.

According to the findings of the military commission of seven Army generals appointed by the President to try the Nazis, Haupt was to die along with Werner Thiel, Herman Neubauer, Richard Quirin, Heinrich Heinick and John Edward Kerling. The hour was set for some time between midnight and dawn today.

But President Roosevelt extended the time to again study the case of young Haupt, who pleaded before the military tribunal that he

'Freedom by Fighting' as Ally Called Goal.

BOMBAY, Aug. 7.—(AP)—In the bizarre setting of a canvas pavilion fitted with electric fans and a public-address system, Mohandas K. Gandhi called on his Nationalist followers today to rise with him in an unprecedented mass campaign of civil disobedience aimed at driving the British out of power in all India.

"Our movements for freedom in the past will become insignificant compared with the forthcoming movement," the frail little ascetic orator declared as he sat motionless, bare above the waist, his bare legs crossed on a couch before which a microphone had been adjusted.

"Now is the occasion when we will have to rise."

Yet with this dramatic summons to action he coupled warnings that the campaign must be passive, that he would not tolerate violence, and that Japanese invasion would be "a dangerous thing—you must remove it from your minds."

Appeals Authorized.

Ten thousand spectators heard him in a hush so deep that the hum of the electric fans was clearly audible throughout his address.

The occasion was the opening of an All-India Congress party session called to sanction a resolution which will make Gandhi the nonviolent generalissimo of the independence drive. Approval perhaps tomorrow, is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

The Congress party's working committee just prior to the opening today authorized its president, as soon as the resolution is endorsed, to appeal to President Roosevelt, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China and Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador to Britain, to support the demand that Great Britain grant India independence immediately.

Britain's previous offers of dominion status after the war is over have been rejected, not only by the All-India Congress party, but by other major factions in the vast diversity of religions and politics among India's nearly 400,000,000 people.

Diversities Still Evident. Those diversities were evident still today, with leaders of various hues of opinion suggesting one thing and another as a "solution" to the perennial Indian problem, now sharpened by the war.

Addressing the 360 Congress party delegates and the thousands of others who had paid up to 100 rupees each for places inside the canvas-walled field, Gandhi declared:

Whelchel Seeks Action To End Ration on Gas

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Representative Whelchel, Democrat, Georgia, said today he would introduce a joint resolution Monday to end gasoline rationing in Georgia and possibly other states.

"There is sufficient gasoline coming into Georgia to meet its needs without impairing the pipe line supply to other states in the east," Whelchel said.

"For example," he added, "the Plantation pipe line passing through Bremen, Ga., brings in a total of 60,000 barrels of gasoline a day, but because the size of the line is reduced there only 42,000 barrels a day can be pumped northward."

"That leaves a surplus of 18,000 barrels there every day. Every storage tank in the neighborhood is filled."

Second Front Demands Serve No Useful Purpose, Says OWI

U.S. Only 'Ankle Deep in War,' Agency Asserts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Office of War Information, warning that "we could lose this war," declared tonight that production of fighting planes, tanks, most types of artillery, and naval vessels fell behind schedule in June and that increasing sacrifices must be made by civilians if the war program is to be successful.

Presenting a gloomy and critical review of the military and production situation at the present time, OWI asserted that individual Americans had made great sacrifices, but "as a nation we are not yet more than ankle deep in the war."

Hit Where It Counts.

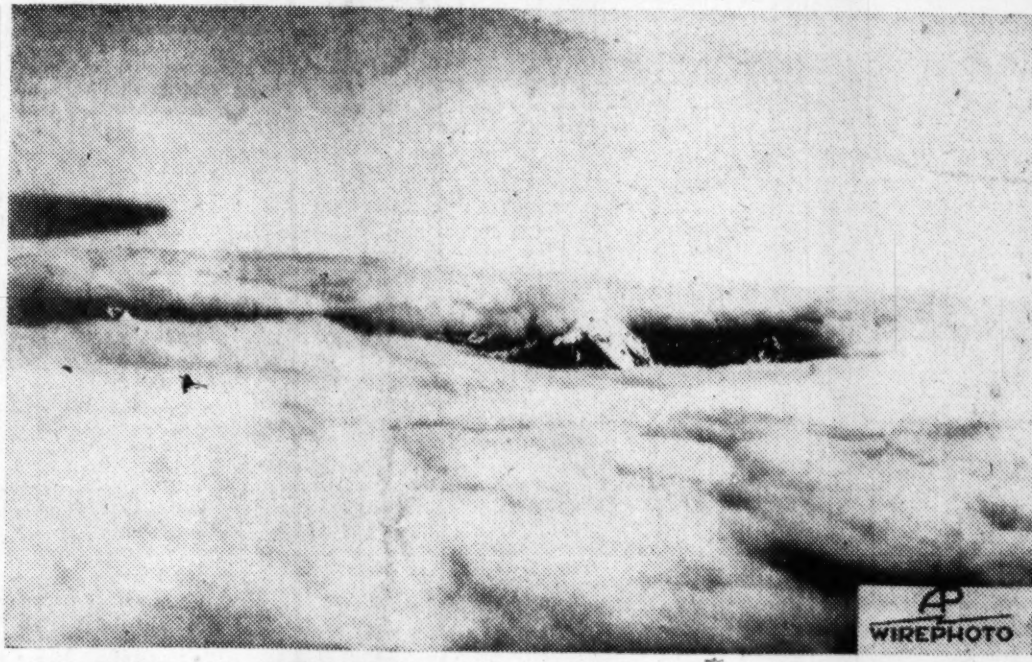

Referring by indirection to demands for the opening of a second front in Europe, the OWI declared that "popular pressure for action on this front or that of the many possible fronts can serve no useful purpose."

American military forces are being disposed "as and where the military commanders believe they get the maximum results," OWI said, "when we cannot be strong and hit hard everywhere, we must be able to hit hard where it counts most even at the price of leaving other areas inactive," OWI said.

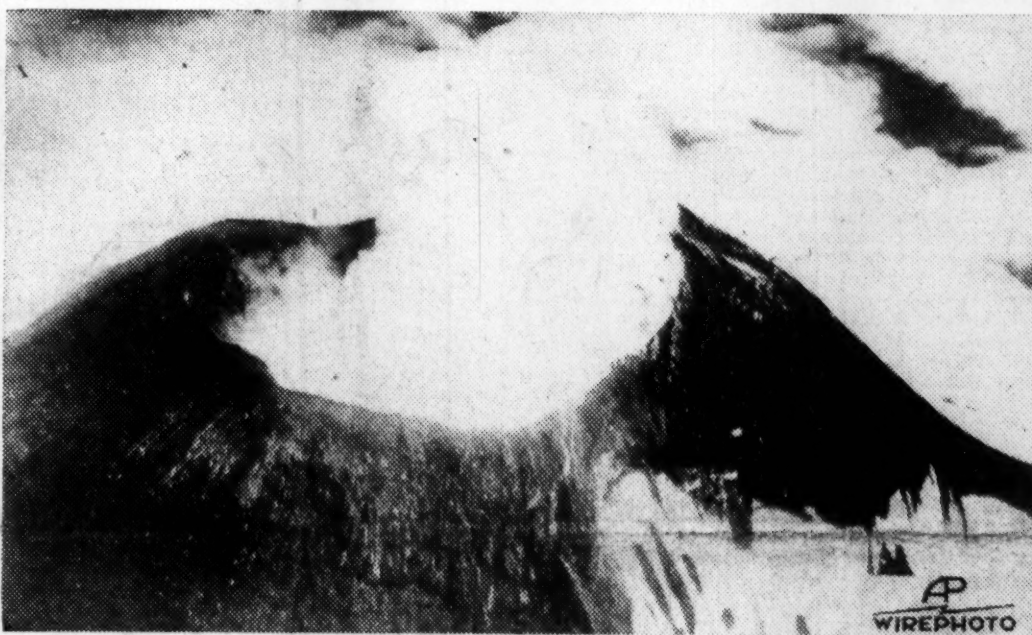

"We always knew that, for us, 1942 would be largely a year of preparation, and that our allies would have to do most of the fighting during most of the year. Before we can do much of the fighting we must move great numbers of men and vast masses of material over enormous distances. This job, so far, has been done with entire success; but we are going to have to keep on doing it, in increasing volume, until the war is won."

The review declared that our Allies thus far have carried most of the load "and we have not given them as much help as we had led them to expect." This

'We Will Not Expose Ruhr,' Goering Said RAF Batters Duisburg Again In Bad Weather

Field Marshal Hermann Goering, chief of the German Luftwaffe, declared at Essen August 10, 1939: "I have inspected many airdromes and other installations of the air force; above all, I have seen to it that the Ruhr, where people must be able to work in peace, receives the greatest security. I have convinced myself personally in many places of antiaircraft measures. I shall in future interest myself in every single battery which may have to be installed. For we will not expose the Ruhr to even one single bomb from enemy aircraft."

Commander Harrigan Bids Farewell to Naval Air Base

Commander D. Ward Harrigan, USN, commanding officer of the Naval Reserve aviation base here since March, 1941, yesterday was detached from the command by the Navy Department and ordered to duty with the fleet.

In a ceremony at the base, Commander Harrigan congratulated the base personnel for its work during his tour of duty as commanding officer.

He pointed to the base's record of not having had a fatal accident since the start of its operations, "a record that is unusual in air training on such a wide scale."

"This record did not come from wishful thinking," he said; "it came from good, hard work day in and day out. I am proud to share with you that successful year and a half's operations."

"As time goes on, NRAB, Atlanta, is going to have another excellent opportunity to become well known in the Navy. You will take on a much more important aspect in the aeronautical organization. The new instrument flight training is going to become increasingly important as time goes on. Bear that in mind and work with the same determination you have in the past 18 months and I know your new commanding officer will be just as proud of you as I have been."

After the farewell talk, Lieutenant Harrigan

Methods for Saving Soviet, Winning War Studied at Kremlin

Russia's peril deepened during the night with the Germans smashing swiftly to the Armavir region due east of the Maikop oil fields in the Caucasus and driving a wedge dangerously near the Volga river city of Stalingrad.

The menace was highlighted by a reported conference at the Kremlin between Allied strategists and diplomats and Soviet military leaders. The Axis radio hinted that Prime Minister Churchill even had rushed to Moscow in the urgency of the Russian situation.

Fierce battles were reported in the Caucasus and some of the greatest tank battles of the war before Stalingrad. The Moscow parley was said to involve means of saving Russia and winning the war. No effort was made to minimize the danger.

Experts Confer At Kremlin Axis 60 Miles From Oil Field

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Urgent conferences on means to save Russia now as an essential to winning the war were reported in session at Moscow today among strategists and diplomats of the United Nations. This information came from sources whose identity could not be disclosed.

Known to be conferring with Russian military leaders in the Kremlin were:

Admiral William H. Standley, American ambassador to Russia, who flew from the alternate capital at Kuibyshev.

Major General Follett Bradley, of the United States Air Force, who flew to Moscow from the United States with a personal message from President Roosevelt to Premier Joseph Stalin.

Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, British ambassador to Russia, who flew from Kuibyshev to the Kremlin.

Roger Garreau, head of the Fighting French Mission to Russia.

Major General William Steffens, Norwegian military attaché to Kuibyshev.

Churchill Report. The established presence of these conferees suggested that others representing their own and other United Nations were in Moscow to help determine how to relieve the pressure on the Red armies defending the Caucasus oil and the Volga lifeline of supply.

Indeed, Axis radio broadcasts of the last several days have rumored that Prime Minister Churchill has been in Moscow along with William C. Bullitt, special envoy of President Roosevelt.

Axis sources several days ago put out the rumor that Premier Stalin had gone to the southern front to direct the defense of the Caucasus and his namesake city, Stalingrad. It was said in Moscow today that General Bradley had not yet had the opportunity to deliver Mr. Roosevelt's message to Stalin.

Supply Big Problem. Another Axis broadcast launched the report that Laurence A. Steinhardt, former United States ambassador to Russia and now the American envoy to Turkey, had gone to Moscow from Ankara, but Moscow dispatches said he was not there and not expected.

The purpose of Bradley's mission was given in a Russian communication.

MOSCOW, Saturday, Aug. 8.—(AP)—German armies plunging deeper into the Caucasus have driven to the Armavir area within 60 miles of the Maikop oil fields, while other Nazi forces moved closer toward the threatened Volga city of Stalingrad, the Russians announced officially today.

Indicating that the Nazi masses had stormed across the vital Kuban river in the western Caucasus, the midnight communique reported that fierce engagements were being fought in the Armavir area and to the south of Kuschchevka.

Armavir is 160 miles south of Rostov on the Rostov-Baku railroad. It is almost on the Kuban river, slightly to the west of that waterway.

Reverse Terse Admitted. The midnight report told of the new reverse in the Caucasus in these terse phrases:

"In the area south of Belaya Glina our troops have been waging defensive battles for several days against advancing German Fascist troops. After bloody battles against superior enemy forces, our troops retreated to a new defense line in the direction of Armavir."

The violent battles of the Don bend, where some of the biggest tank engagements of the war were being fought, continued without letup.

The communique declared several German attacks were repulsed in the Kleitskaya area, some 75 miles northwest of Stalingrad. One guard unit alone was said to have hurled back 17 enemy tank attacks.

Public Is Warned On Bogus Officers

An increasing number of arrests in which civilians are accused of impersonating commissioned officers of the U. S. Army brought from Major General William Bryden, commanding general of the Fourth Service Command, yesterday a warning to residents of the seven southeastern states to use caution in granting courtesies to a man in the uniform of an Army officer unless his identity has been definitely established.

"Unscrupulous persons are masquerading in uniforms of commissioned officers for the sole purpose of personal gain," General Bryden warned the public. "This type of person is not willing to work and sacrifice for what he gets and often succeeds in obtaining money, hotel accommodations or other benefits solely on the strength of the uniform he unlawfully wears."

In instances where the public has been victimized," the general continued, "generous citizens were granting special favors to a man in uniform. The Army appreciates this spirit of co-operation by civilians and we take this means to protect those individuals and prevent repetition of past unfortunate incidents."

Several recent instances were pointed out by the general as evidence that the public has been defrauded by bogus officers. Bona fide officers, on the other hand, have ample identification and are not offended when asked to show their credentials.

Hotel men and others in private business were cautioned to ask for the officer's personal identification card before cashing checks or granting unusual courtesies solely because they are in the service of their country.

The identification card is a form issued by the adjutant general bearing a photograph of the owner, his rank, description and the thumb and fingerprints of his right hand. The card is stamped with the official seal and on the reverse side are instructions for returning it to the adjutant general, United States Army, if it should be lost. Use of the identification card by any person other than the rightful owner is prohibited by law.

Don't be fooled by phony officers, the Army warns. Real ones will beg led to prove their identity. See sample on page 5.

U. S. Grand Jury Will Probe Stories On Midway Battle

Judge Jackson Resigns From Regent Board

New Party Rule Given as Reason by Talmadge Appointee.

GRAY, Ga., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Superior Court Judge Joe Ben Jackson revealed tonight he had resigned as a member of the State Board of Regents and that his resignation had been accepted by Governor Talmadge.

Judge Jackson, who has consistently supported Talmadge, was appointed to the post in June, 1941, when Talmadge reshuffled the Board of Regents to obtain a belated victory in his efforts to oust a number of educators on charges they advocated racial co-education.

The veteran jurist and former state legislator said he submitted his resignation on June 26 of this year and that it was accepted immediately.

Asked the reason for his resignation, Judge Jackson said:

"I interpreted a new party rule adopted by the state Democratic executive committee to mean that I had to resign from the Board of Regents."

The committee's new rule requires that a candidate seeking office, the term of which does not expire prior to the start of the term of the office sought, must resign the office held.

Judge Jackson's term would have run until July 1, 1947. He was appointed to the board to succeed Miller R. Bell, of Milledgeville.

Asked if there had been any split between him and Talmadge, whom he supported all the way in the governor's educator ouster proceedings, Judge Jackson said:

"I went in as the Governor's friend and I left as his friend."

He is a candidate for re-election as superior court judge and added that he thought he was affected by the Democratic party rule and "wanted to be sure" he was within its bounds.

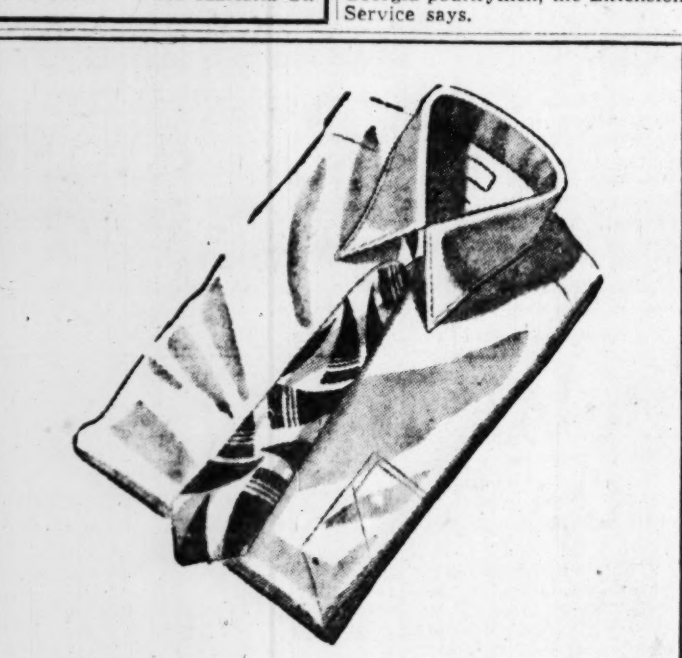

Resignation Received Sometime Ago.
The resignation of Judge Joe Ben Jackson was received some time ago, the Governor told newspaper reporters last night immediately after his address at the Erlanger theater.

The resignation was offered, the Governor said, as the result of other business which was taking all of Judge Jackson's time.

The Governor said he had not had an opportunity to consider naming a successor.

THIS TOOK WORK—As a matter of fact, nine and a half months of effort went into the ornamental picture holder made by William B. Ensley. There are 1,127 different pieces of handcarved wood in the holder, which Ensley proudly displays here.

Mountaineer Keeps Occupied 9 1-2 Months Carving Frame

William B. Ensley, who calls himself a Georgia hillbilly, was out in the mountains cutting some timber near Blairsville, and time got heavy on his hands.

So he turned to his old hobby of wood carving. Nine and a half months later Ensley had an ornamental picture holder with 1,127 different pieces of hand-carved wood in it.

The wood came from 36 kinds of trees.

Ensley did the work in his spare time, he said, on a visit to Atlanta yesterday, and he had no way of telling how many hours it took to complete the work.

"One rainy day I spent 10 hours working on it," Ensley said. "I got 17 pieces carved and fitted into place that day."

"I didn't use anything except my pocketknife and a wood chisel."

Cooper Wins Atlantan Joins Primary Race Commission In Tennessee

Governor Builds Lead in Memphis; Stewart Gets Senate Bid.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The potency of the E. H. Crump political organization in Shelby (Memphis) county demonstrated itself again in yesterday's statewide Democratic primary with the renomination of Governor Prentice Cooper and Senator Tom Stewart.

Cooper was renominated for his third consecutive two-year term and Stewart for his first full six-year term in the United States senate. The Democratic nomination is tantamount to election.

On the basis of nearly complete unofficial returns, the 45-year-old chief executive and his opponent, former Congressman J. Ridley Mitchell, ran virtually neck and neck outside Shelby, but in 121 of 128 precincts there Cooper polled 43,467 votes to Mitchell's 2,532.

Edward Ward Carmack, Stewart's opponent, led the junior senator by a margin of approximately 14,000 votes before he was engulfed by the 39,000 to 6,000 majority the Crump-dominated Shelby gave Stewart.

Unofficial returns from 1,994 of 2,317 precincts gave the count for the four candidates: Cooper 159,035; Mitchell 115,738; Stewart 126,116; Carmack 108,486.

Changes Slated In Entertainers At Night Spots

Universal Ration Book Is Prepared

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration disclosed today that it was preparing a universal ration book which could be issued to each citizen for use in rationing any commodity or article as need arose.

"Such a book is being designed experimentally for the OPA now, and proof copies are being prepared at the Government Printing Office," Paul M. O'Leary, deputy OPA administrator in charge of rationing, said.

"If it can be made workable, we would have in our hands an instrument that would enable us to start a rationing program almost overnight, instead of having to take six to 10 weeks as in the past when we have had to let the emergencies wait while we got scores of millions of coupon books printed."

Changes in talent at two of Atlanta's brightest night spots, the Henry Grady Paradise Room and the Ansley Rainbow Roof, will be made tonight when Chaz Chase, the comedian who eats everything from cigar butts to his own shirt, opens at the Paradise Room for a limited engagement and Benny Strong and his "Band of the Moment" plays for dancing on the "Roof."

Chase comes to Atlanta from Broadway, where he was starred in a musical comedy. Held over for one more night will be Dolly Dawn, singer, who made a hit with Paradise crowds. Strong, long a favorite of radio listeners, has one of the most popular bands in the country.

North Georgia Group Pledges Arnall Support

Talmadge on Republican Ballot, Says Gilmer County Leader.

By LAMAR Q. BALL
Constitution Staff Writer.

CUMMING, Ga., Aug. 7.—North Georgia voiced its disgust with dictatorship in state government today and pledged itself to a place in the front ranks of the crusade for a return of the government to the people.

From a platform in the courtroom of Dahlonega's famous old seat of its county government, a 20-year-old boy, a student at North Georgia College, said quietly to an audience that filled the room and overflowed into the square outside:

"I'm not a voter. I'm just a boy. So, I'll just speak as a boy. I'm a Georgian and I plan to live in Georgia all my life—where my parents have lived. Some day, I hope to have a family."

Fight for Goal.
"Georgia needs better schools, better high schools and a better university system. The faculties of these schools must be free from politics, interference and meaningless strife."

"When I get my vote, I'll vote and fight for these goals."

The boy was Guy Scott, chairman of the student executive committee at the college, another of those who have been ravaged by Talmadge and his puppets in the Board of Regents.

Guy Scott was one of scores of students in this college with a diminishing enrollment to welcome Ellis Arnall to Lumpkin county and to pledge their help to the end in the crusade for clean government that Arnall is waging.

Welcomed by 2,000.

Ellis Arnall's journey up into the lower fringes of the Blue Ridge mountains today also took him to Cumming, in Forsyth county, where more than 2,000 persons welcomed him at a program in the spacious courthouse square.

Traveling with Arnall in his visit to Dahlonega, Dawsonville and Cumming was Herman De La Perriere, of Heshon, Ga., a former ally of Talmadge, who announced his conversion yesterday before 15,000 students and townspeople when Arnall visited the University of Georgia.

At Cumming, late today, De La Perriere told his neighbors of north Georgia:

"I have seen today many faces I recognized as old allies of mine in the Talmadge fold. I am glad to say that only three of those persons told me that they would continue to support Talmadge."

At Dahlonega, H. Ben Smith, father of the mayor of the city, was master of ceremonies, introducing visitors from neighboring counties.

Dr. J. G. Cole, of Gilmer county, said:

"Gilmer has always been one of Talmadge's banner counties. The Republicans in our county have always supported Talmadge because he was so bitterly hostile to Franklin D. Roosevelt. Talmadge is the only Democrat who has put his name on a Republican ballot."

At Dahlonega, H. Ben Smith, father of the mayor of the city, was master of ceremonies, introducing visitors from neighboring counties.

Dr. J. G. Cole, of Gilmer county, said:

"I have supported Talmadge. But when he undertook to study the school system of Georgia, I said 'good-bye.'"

Tom McDonald, of White county, said:

"The Talmadge ranks are weakening in White county. I am not a Talmadge man. I will carry White."

Senator J. F. Pruitt was a leader of the Arnall meeting at Dahlonega.

At Dawsonville, en route to Cumming, Arnall paused for a brief talk, and was welcomed by Mayor Arnold E. Hamner.

Ingram for Arnall.
At Cumming, John D. Black, a former member of the legislature and a former ordinary in Forsyth county, said:

"I've supported Talmadge in all but one of his campaigns, but I'm with Arnall and a clean-up in state affairs right now."

Royston Ingram, member of the legislature, announced his wholehearted approval of Arnall's platform.

Roy Ottwell, mayor, editor, banker of Forsyth county, introduced Arnall and called on his neighbors to join a fight against Talmadgism. Arthur Nix, a farmer of Dawson county and an old Talmadge leader, was a conspicuous figure in the crowd at the meeting.

Arnall continues his campaign in Georgia today, with speeches at Calhoun at 2 o'clock and at Jasper at 5 o'clock.

'Two-Ocean Attack' Foreseen by Hepburn

FERGUE, Ont., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn, of Ontario, who recently predicted an imminent Japanese bombing of the American mainland, declared today, "I believe we are going to have an attack on the Atlantic coast very soon, and a two-ocean attack in the near future."

In a speech at the opening of the $2,000,000 Shand dam here, the provincial premier described Prime Minister Mackenzie King's Dominion government as "those men at Ottawa with Vichy minds" and said, "I believe our fate all depends on the disposition of the French fleet in the Mediterranean and the German drive into the Caucasus."

PANAMA GETS FLOUR.
BALBOA, Panama Canal Zone, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The capital of Panama, which had faced a prospect of being without bread beginning tomorrow, received a supply of flour today from Canal Zone authorities sufficient to provide bread for five more days. Further aid was promised if the flour shortage continues.

Housing for U. S. Big British Task

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Housing of United States troops and airmen was described by Labor Minister Ernest Bevin as Britain's biggest job at a recent secret meeting of civil and engineering industries representatives, it was disclosed tonight.

To complete the huge building program, 28,000 building workers who were due for military call-up soon will be left in the industry until October, provided they are on priority work, Bevin declared.

Shot by Pistol in Own Pocket, Moviegoer, 76, Doesn't Know It!

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
QUITMAN, Ga., Aug. 7.—Enoch Edmondson, prominent Morven citizen, was shot and seriously injured in a theater here last night in an unusual accident.

He had a pistol in his right hand coat pocket and in moving around in the seat, the pistol apparently was fired. The bullet entered Mr. Edmondson's back, passed through a rib, ranged upward, puncturing the lung and lodging in the back of the neck.

Mr. Edmondson had entered the theater about 15 minutes before. The audience was not panic-stricken when the pistol shot sounded and Mr. Edmondson looked around with others to see what had happened. Presently he got up and walked several blocks toward his car before seeming to realize he was shot.

He was removed to the hospital and this morning his condition is regarded as serious.

He is 76 years old and a member of a prominent Brooks county family.

Governor Predicts Reaccrediting of University System.

By The Associated Press.
Governor Talmadge last night accused the Rosenwald Foundation of trying to break down southern ideals by sponsoring writers and educators "who advocate racial equality, voting equality and even marriage equality."

A candidate for re-election, Talmadge said in an address prepared for radio delivery that his political opponents "have turned a deaf ear to this rising tide of destruction which awaits us unless we act with a firm hand now, just as we have in the past."

Racial Favor Cited.
Accusing the foundation also of favoring racial co-education not only in the colleges but in the lower grades as well, Talmadge said, "my acts in protecting the traditions of the south and the university from this agitation is the only issue that has given the thoughtful people of Georgia any concern."

Turning to the gasoline rationing program, which he said would cost Georgia from 12 to 15 million dollars in revenue, Talmadge declared "a nation-wide rationing of 10 per cent would save as much gasoline as being saved now by a program that places a burden on a few states and hits Georgia especially hard."

Talmadge then added that rationing had reduced gas tax collections in such states as Georgia, Florida and North Carolina of from 21 to 23 per cent, while such unrationed states as Alabama, Arkansas and Mississippi have lost only from 1 to 5 per cent of their gas tax income.

Reaccrediting Predicted.
The Governor then predicted the reaccrediting of the University System of Georgia, dropped from the approved lists of several accrediting agencies last fall after he had been accused of ousting 10 educators for political purposes.

"As soon as this election is over," Talmadge declared, "they will have no excuse to continue this discrediting unless there is cause, such as curriculum below standard, professors who are not qualified to teach or lack of equipment."

"You need have no fears about the standing of this university system," he added.

4 More Women Seek To Avoid Health Program

Four other women yesterday sought their freedom from city health and police authorities in an attempt to avoid being interned to take treatment for venereal diseases.

Lorene Moore, Manie Harris, Beatrice Paschal and Lucille Nations filed habeas corpus proceedings resisting a new city health program which calls for holding all women arrested under suspicious circumstances without bond until their physician attestation as to social diseases has been determined. The program also provides that health authorities may enter them until danger of spread of the disease has passed.

Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of Fulton county superior court, set 10 o'clock this morning as the time for hearing the petitions. Attorneys James R. Venable, Frank Bowers and Frank Grizzard filed all the suits.

Man Sought in Mass Slaying Eludes Posse

NAHANTA, Ga., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A man wanted for questioning in connection with the mass slaying of a farm family slipped through a police guard watching his home last night and returned to his hideout in nearby swamps.

Sheriff Earle Raulerson said that about 75 possmen were searching the Knee-Knocker swamp for the man. He returned to his home here last night, the sheriff said, and there eluded two guards who discovered him.

The hunted man is wanted in connection with the slaying of George Riley Strickland, 65-year-old farmer, his wife and two sons.

Heavy Sub Toll Taken, Alexander Announces

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—"We are continuing to take a very heavy toll of Axis submarines," A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, told a London audience today, but explained that strategic considerations forbade publication of details.

"With the growing strength of escort ships of the United States fleet and the help we already had from our own air force and the gathering help we are getting from aircraft of the United Nations this good work is going to go on."

Body Requests Justice Group To Probe Dies

Charges Texan Shielded Persons Indicted in Conspiracy.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The National Federation for Constitutional Liberties today asked the Justice Department to investigate Representative Martin Dies, Democrat, Texas, in connection with the recent indictment by a Washington (D. C.) grand jury of 28 persons for conspiring to undermine the morale of United States armed forces.

George Marshall, economist and federation chairman, made the request in a letter to William Power Maloney, assistant to the attorney general, stating: "We charge that Martin Dies has, on many occasions, used his high office to shield and protect persons now charged with active participation in a conspiracy to impair the loyalty, morale and discipline of the military and naval forces of the United States through publication and dissemination of literature urging the obstruction and defeat of our national defense against aggression and invasion, and the national war effort."

Federation officials described the organization as a group formed two years ago "for the protection of the Bill of Rights." The letter asserted the grand jury should determine the nature of the relationship, if any, between Dies and Gerald B. Winrod, George Sylvester Viereck, William Dudley Pelley, Charles B. Hutson, William Kullgren, Eugene Nelson, Robert Edward Edmondson, James True, Edward James Smythe and other individuals, organizations and publications named in the indictment.

"It is clear from the official record of his committee, that Dies, far from exposing the un-American activities of the above-named, repeatedly allowed them to utilize his committee as a forum for the airing of their pro-Axis views," the letter charged.

WPB Decrees Style in Men's Work Clothes

Fewer Pockets, Buttons, Buckles; Minimum Yardage Ruled.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The War Production Board decreed today that men's work clothes today—fewer pockets, fewer buttons and buckles and no unnecessary yardage.

Unlike previous clothing orders, this one contained a minimum as well as a maximum yardage regulation for each type of garment.

"The minimum yardage restriction was provided," the WPB explained, "to prevent the skimping which would interfere with a worker's freedom of action and defeat the conservation purpose of the order by making it necessary for a worker to buy a larger size or wear out in a short time as a tight-fitting garment."

The WPB estimated the order would result in an annual saving of 21,000,000 yards of cloth, enough to provide 7,000,000 additional garments; 125,000,000 yards of thread, through the elimination of triple stitching; 150,000,000 buttons and 12,000,000 buckles, and 29 per cent of the normal shipping space involved in the shipping of work shirts, since the order prohibits the shipping of these in boxes.

By serving the requisition for the auto graveyard section of WPB, United States Deputy Marshal G. E. Ball, of Savannah, gave the government title to 550,000 pounds of scrap metal—enough to build 100 tanks.

The 2,316 cars which contained this urgently needed material lay overgrown with weeds at the roadside field of the Ogeechee Auto Wrecking Company and the Reese & Argus Auto Company near Savannah, and at the Cecchee Auto Parts Company near Waycross, Ga.

James T. Bray, Atlanta district chief of WPB auto graveyard section, said the government had been trying to get the owners to clear the yards since April 23, and that, while they had released a "trickle" of scrap to mills working on war production, it was "another case of too little, too late."

The Ogeechee firm, with acres of scattered car carcasses on both sides of U. S. Highway 17 and yielded 1,200 old autos while 400 more were recovered from its Waycross lot. According to WPB officials, this is the largest single requisitioning in the history of the WPB and the first in the south.

The government took title to 718 additional units at the Reese & Argus establishment.

Deputy marshals were left to guard the government's newly acquired scrap pile which was taken under the severe war powers act in the name of a RFC subsidiary, the Metals Reserve Company.

Simultaneously, Douglas Knight, representing an Atlanta scrap iron firm, took steps to prepare the yard for war use. Under contract with Metals Reserve, he must clear the yard within 60 days, and Bray said that some of the rusting cars which weeds have all but buried will be in action as tanks and bullets before snow flies in Russia.

Accompanying Bray were Joseph H. Miller, technical adviser, F. Monroe Allen, liaison officer, both from WPB's Auto Graveyard Division, and C. H. Johnson, representing WPB's inventory and requisition branch, from Washington, D. C.

The materials in the yards will be taken under Johnson's direction, and owners of the lots will be paid current scrap prices for the wrecked autos. Salvaged parts, he said, are counted as scrap, thus penalizing graveyard operators who do not voluntarily co-operate with the nation's war effort.

Explaining the government's action in closing the yards, Miller said:

Every Ounce Needed.
"In four months since Bray invited these dealers to co-operate, they could have cleaned out their yards and continued to operate at a profit. Most of the nation's 22,000 auto wrecking firms have done this without hardship. Hundreds are now operating with cars they have taken in since the beginning of the scrap salvage program."

He pointed out that steel mills and furnaces are now running on a hand-to-mouth basis with less than 24 hours' supply of scrap to keep them going.

"This is the time of year when they must stock-pile scrap to carry them through the winter," he said.

"This year when we vitally need every ounce of materials, they are falling behind, and some steel mills will have to close unless we act now. Every ton of scrap saves between four and five tons of pig iron and other vital raw materials necessary in making steel."

Dr. Guy Wells Sergeant Who Chose Unknown Soldier Is Dead at Age of 44

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Edward F. Younger, 44, the infantry sergeant who chose the Unknown Soldier of World War I to be buried in the tomb at Arlington, Va., died today in Hines Memorial hospital.

Although funeral plans were not completed, there was a possibility his body might lie in Arlington near that of the soldier he chose at Chalons-Sur-Marne in 1921 to rest "in honored glory... known but to God."

Younger, a postal employee here after the war, was in the 50th Infantry, Army of Occupation, and was policing a small town on the Rhine when given his historic assignment.

"Proceed to Chalons-Sur-Marne," the commandant told him. "There five other enlisted men will join you. Report to Major Harbold."

At the town the major instructed him: "At Chalons-Sur-Marne there is a small chapel. In it are four caskets, each containing the body of an unidentified American soldier, martyred in service."

"You, Sergeant Younger, will lay a wreath on one casket, chosen at random. Then the six of you, acting as pallbearers, will escort the casket to the seaport of Havre. It will be placed aboard a naval vessel and taken home."

In 1930 Younger visited the National cemetery and placed a second wreath at the bier of the comrade he had selected nine years earlier.

Younger's widow, Agnes, and two children, James and Gloria, survive.

"If that happened, I would hate myself."

He urged Indian independence as an essential to Indian co-operation in the war against the Axis.

"If it is only Britain and the United States who fight this war, and if our part is only to give momentary help whether given willingly or taken from us unwillingly, it is not a very happy proposition," he said.

"We shall get our freedom by fighting. It cannot fall from the skies."

"I know full well that the British will have to give us our freedom when we have made sufficient sacrifice and proved our strength."

"We must remove hatred for the British from our hearts. At least in my heart there is no such hatred."

"As a matter of fact I am a greater friend of the British now than I ever was," he added. "My friendship demands that I make them aware of their mistakes."

Despite his mention of fighting, he cautioned:

"It may be that in a moment of anger they (the British) might do things that might provoke you. Nevertheless, you should not resort to violence. Put violence to shame."

Then this cryptic utterance: "When such things happen, you may take it that you will not find me alive, wherever I may be. Their blood will be on your head. If you don't understand this it will be better if you reject the resolution."

Dixie Posts Order Big Coal Delivery
Procuring and delivering an estimated 1,500,000 tons of coal by the end of September for Dixie Army posts is the job being rushed to completion by the Fourth Service Command.

Thousands of tons of coal are pouring in from southeastern states mines and the program calls for delivery with great rapidity in order to get the attendant freight problem out of the way during the next 60 days, to free facilities for other vital shipping. Fourth Service Command Quartermaster Colonel Roland Walsh said yesterday.

In normal times shipments would be scheduled to arrive at periods covering the entire winter season.

Tobacco Firms Are Accused Of False Ads

Misrepresentation Laid to Two Companies by FTC.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Federal Trade Commission announced today that it had issued complaints charging Philip Morris & Company, Ltd., Inc., of New York and Richmond, Va., and R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Jersey City, N. J., and Winston-Salem, N. C., with misrepresentation and false advertising of cigarettes and smoking tobacco.

The complaints charge, the FTC said, that Philip Morris falsely advertised that Philip Morris cigarettes cause no throat or nose irritation, that their superiority was recognized by eminent medical authorities and had been scientifically proved. The complaint also alleged that misrepresentations were made with regard to Dunhill cigarette majors and Revelation smoking tobacco.

The complaint against the Reynolds Company alleged false representation in advertising that Camel cigarettes aided digestion, gave a "lift" in energy, and in general that the smoker of Camels was thereby "quicker" from a state of fatigue to one of brisk animation. The FTC also charged that false testimonials were published on behalf of Camels.

The complaint alleged false representation in claims that Prince Albert smoking tobacco was the coolest of all smoking tobaccos.

In New York, Alfred E. Lyon, executive vice president of Philip Morris, declared that the claims made by the commission were without merit and would be contested vigorously.

'Miss You' Misses Boat on BBC List

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The BBC banned some of the most popular British and American songs from the air tonight as "sentimental slush" and the tunesmiths said they would fight back, suggesting that even Home Sweet Home could be sung in an undesirable way.

Among those on the forbidden list issued to band leaders and singers was "Miss You," which placed third this week in a compilation of the 10 most popular tunes on the networks.

Others banned are "Singing Sands of Alamosa," "Homecoming," "I'll Just Close My Eyes," "Moonlight Cocktail," "You Walk By," "Autumn Nocturne," "If You Haven't Got Dreams You've Got Nothing At All," "Mandy Is Two," "Goodnight Daddy."

Most of the members advised against it, the dispatch said, because of his state of health, but eventually left the decision to the Indian leader himself.

German Blackmail

Germany, which executes a man, woman or child on the slightest suspicion of disloyalty—Germany, which kills all who live in a village if a patriot is found in that village who resists them—This Germany reportedly threatens to kill American captives if the spies captured in this country are executed by our military authorities.

Had Americans been captured on German soil with explosives and Germany money in their possession, clad in German clothing and not in military uniform, they would have been killed on the spot or after some hours of brutal torture in an effort to discover possible associates.

Those Germans have been given every legal right. The patience of the American people has been exhausted. They want those would-be murderers of noncombatants executed.

The German attitude is in pattern. Vicious people follow it everywhere, whether they be political dictators of states or of nations. It is blackmail by fear and intimidation. They seek to avert justice by terror.

Germany must not be allowed to get away with it.

These men must pay the penalty.

Silent Submarines

Simon Lake, the 75-year-old inventor of underwater torpedo boats, has told a congressional committee he has perfected a device which make it possible for an underwater craft to run in silence.

His testimony was in connection with the proposal to build underwater cargo boats.

The more obvious move would be to apply them to our submarines. A submarine which can proceed silently under water can approach enemy warships without being detected. It can escape them as well.

Submarines are detected by listening devices which pick up the sound of the sub's engines which, under water, are operated by electric batteries. When on the surface the sound of its diesel motors may be detected in the same manner.

It would seem to the average person that the first job is to put those silencers on our submarines. And thereby increase their effectiveness an almost incalculable amount.

Turkish View

"Europe has almost come to the end of her war effort when America is just beginning . . . concentrating every thought on victory."

These are the words of a Turkish newspaper editor, Zekeriya Sertel, who recently said in an Istanbul paper that the whole United States is determined "to strike the enemy a mortal blow."

The statements are sound. The Axis are pinning everything on a desperate move on Russia.

We in America hope it won't be long till United States planes and guns will be turning the tide.

Mr. Sertel erred only slightly. He probably would have been more correct if he had said this country was moving toward the middle of her war effort. A period when we are neither weak nor really strong. A period where we must keep giving and never slacken. A period when we must keep our chins up and not let our morale falter.

It's this midway point, Mr. Sertel, that's so important. We must keep things rolling!

Ride—And Think!

Travel on buses and trolleys has increased 35,000 a day since inauguration of permanent gasoline rationing.

Such traffic is 50 per cent above the same period last year.

We Atlantans have handled this extra 35,000—about five times the capacity of the largest theater here. We Atlantans include those patriotic firms which have staggered hours, transportation officials and just plain riders who have squeezed a little closer together.

This emphasizes the problem the government has been pointing out all along: That private automobiles are essential to the war effort.

Mass transportation facilities can absorb only so many extra thousands of riders. There comes a time when there just isn't "room for one more." The rest must be moved. And the family jalopy is the only answer. The government estimates that tires are wearing out at the rate of 110,000 a day.

It might be well, therefore, to pause and wonder next time you are about the drive on some unnecessary errand if next year you might not wish to heaven that you hadn't.

Russian Position

Russia is believed to have reached prepared positions in the Caucasian battle for oil, Russia to hold, Germany to obtain.

It is inevitable that Russia's supplies and reserves are fast running low.

Russia has lost more than 600,000 square miles of territory in which 50,000,000 persons lived. The wheat fields of the Ukraine were lost long ago. Most of the cultivated regions, the most productive ones, are about Stalingrad and are lost or in danger.

Russia has fewer men to draw upon, and fewer fields and factories, than Germany. Germany has 300,000,000 persons in her conquered territory and even though some are hostile, some are not and supply workers and soldiers.

Russia's military position has deteriorated more than is comfortable to consider.

Shrimpers To War

Most everyone likes shrimp—prepared and served in a variety of delicious ways. And yet most everyone who enjoys this food gives little thought to the men who put out to sea in small boats so that the delicacy may grace untold thousands of tables. But be assured that these men deserve attention. They are a patriotic group, anxious to do their part in the all-out war effort.

The sturdy Georgia and Louisiana shrimping fleet stands ready to go to war in the campaign against Axis raiders in the Gulf and has offered its several thousand craft to the Navy to aid in the important fight against Nazi submarines. Far from being kept in home ports by subs operating against shipping, the men of the shrimping fleet are anxious to do more than merely catch elusive crustaceans fancied for salads and cocktails.

The men of the shrimping fleet want to get in there and fight for their country. They want to help send subs to the bottom. They want to feel themselves a genuine part of the battle for freedom. The Navy should accept their offer.

Georgia Editors Say:

GEORGIA MEAT ANIMALS

(From The Moultrie Observer)
Georgia farmers received more than $18,899,000 last year from the sale of their meat animals, the American Meat Institute announces. Georgia hogs sold in 1941 brought in nearly $1,293,000; Georgia cattle and calves nearly $7,584,000, and Georgia sheep and lambs, mostly lambs, about $22,000. Animals dressed on the farm were not included.

On a produce-value basis meat packing is the third manufacturing industry in Georgia, according to the latest (1939) Census of Manufactures. With a total packinghouse product of $23,848,214, as valued at the plant, Georgia ranked 23rd among the 48 states in that industry. Georgia meat packing establishments paid out $19,192,321 in that year for livestock supplies, fuel, power, etc., the major portion of this amount going for livestock. The remainder, about $4,655,000, was used to pay other expenses of doing business, such as wages, taxes, rent, depreciation, interest and sales and delivery expenses; and for earnings where such remained. About 75 per cent of the value of meat, lard, etc., at the plant was paid out by the meat packing industry for the purchase of livestock, from which is produced such a variety of meats that there always is available a kind or cut to fit any budget.

Georgia's 16 meat packing establishments which were reported in 1939 gave employment during 1939 to an average of 1,827 men and women.

Cash received for livestock represents the American farmer's largest source of income. Over a period of years the return from meat animals has averaged about one-fourth of his total cash income.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

CONGRESSIONAL OUTLOOK WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—More than half of the states have now held their primary elections and nothing has happened to indicate that any unusual political upsets are in the offing. The Democrats, according to the present outlook, will go on to win the congressional elections in November by a comfortable margin, probably increasing their majority in the lower house by a minimum of 10 seats. Democratic control of the senate is even more threatened, due to the fact that only a third of the membership there is up for election this year, so that little interest is being manifested in contests involving the upper chamber.

Nothing has been proved by the state primary elections held so far. Efforts to raise the one-party isolationist issue have been successful in some states and a failure in others. Voting has been unusually light and political interest at a low ebb. The people's main preoccupation has been with the war.

Personalities, rather than issues, have dominated in most contests. The people, for the most part, seem willing to let bygones be bygones so far as the isolationist issue goes. Unanimous support for the isolationist issue was not shown in the contests. The people's main preoccupation has been with the war.

JOINT OPPOSITION So rock-ribbed Republican is the Fish district, which, incidentally, embraces the President's home at Hyde Park, that most observers agree it is only possible to win it by a landslide. It probably will have to withdraw a candidate of their own party and support some acceptable Republican opponent.

New York still holds the limelight as offering the most interesting political contest of the year. The fight there turns on the governorship, with former postmaster general and national party chairman, Jim Farley, pitted against President Roosevelt and his friends.

Mr. Farley, the present New York state chairman, will probably have his political career determined by the outcome. He is accused by New Deal sources of quietly attempting to sew up the gubernatorial nomination for State Attorney General Bennett as a means of controlling the big New York block of votes at the 1944 Democratic national convention. When the New Dealers got wise to his efforts, they forced Senator James M. Mead into the race.

An election will be held in the Empire State next Tuesday, at which time delegates will be selected to a state convention to be held later on in the month for the purpose of naming the party's candidate for governor. The congressional primaries will be held on the same day.

Before the Mead candidacy was announced Farley claimed to have already lined up some 650 of the 1,014 delegates who will make up the convention. He probably had. Thus, if the New Dealers are able to upset the situation by presidential influence or otherwise, it will be a distinct blow to Mr. Farley's prestige. Little will remain for him to resign his state chairmanship, an action that would divest him of his last remaining political office.

WILLKIE-DEWEY Despite the efforts of Wendell L. Willkie to block him off, Thomas E. Dewey, trust-busting Republican district attorney who failed to be elected governor last time by the narrow margin of some 60,000 votes, seems certain again to be the gubernatorial candidate of his party. Mr. Willkie does not like the Dewey pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist stand. Also, he probably would not like to see him sitting as governor of New York as a potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1944. Mr. Willkie will be a presidential candidate himself.

What Democratic leaders are afraid of is that the Farley-New Deal row will jeopardize the party's chances for electing a governor of the nation's most populous state this fall. Mr. Farley has not said what he will do if his candidate is denied the nomination. Also opposing President Roosevelt's third-term nomination is a deadlock between Mead and Bennett the New Dealers, as a gesture of friendliness, may offer the nomination to Farley. Despite his past misgivings with the administration, the President and his friends are believed prepared to go along on a program of the kind. No assurance has been forthcoming, however, that the compromise move would be acceptable to Mr. Farley. Outwardly, at least, he is being stubborn about the situation and seems bent on naming his man—or else.

THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Editor, Constitution: Within the last year one of the Macon papers editorialized that the medical profession was writing many insulting editorials about the American Medical Association, and the editorials have become much worse since the University of Georgia Medical College lost its ratings. I do not know why this editor wrote of the Macon Telegraph takes so much delight in ridiculing the medical profession, especially the American Medical Association.

A. for many years. So has Dr. Allen H. Bunce, of Atlanta, who was born in the country near Statesboro. So has Dr. O. H. Weaver, of Macon, who was born at Greensboro. While the Macon Telegraph editorial writer ridicules the A. M. A., the United States government thinks enough of this same organization to request it to set up an organization to select approximately 65,000 of its own members to become medical officers in the United States armed forces.

A Georgia member, the same Dr. Edgar Paulin from Fort Gaines and Atlanta, has served as one of the five doctors from the United States to set up his work. The work is being well done and deserves commendation rather than condemnation. I sincerely hope that the next time the Macon Telegraph sees fit to attack the American Medical Association, consisting of approximately 60,000 of the recognized medical profession of the United States, that some nationally-known newspaper in Georgia will reply to the same. We are not furriers, but we are a group of more or less educated men in a profession which has been well thought of for at least a thousand years.

UNITED COMMAND URGENTLY NEEDED

Editor Constitution: We are in a war and a tough one, don't

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Virginia NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Howard Smith, congressman for the eighth district of Virginia, has been renominated and, in practical effect, re-elected over the candidate who was sent out to get him on behalf of the American Federation of Labor and, less frankly, by the CIO and the New Deal. Smith is a vigorous congressman who has fought for laws to forbid intimidation of workers by unions and for other proposals to impose responsibilities on unions equal to their powers.

He was opposed by Emmett C. Davidson, secretary-treasurer of the International Machinists' Union of the AFL and former mayor of Alexandria, a suburb of Washington, which is the home of John L. Lewis and many New Deal ideologists and the dormitory of many government clerical workers and manual workers employed on Washington war jobs.

Discussing the campaign against Smith, Arthur Krock wrote last week in the New York Times that the CIO had "found common cause with its rival (the AFL) in the two cities of the eighth district, Alexandria and Charlottesville."

"To the aid of the organized workers," Krock added, "has come the phalanx of self-styled 'liberal' publications, and their assaults on Mr. Smith as an apostle of sanity have been so broad and expensively circulated throughout the district. These journals contend that Mr. Smith promoted disunity by baiting and persecuting labor as a whole. . . . The farmers, tradespeople, workmen and government employees who make up his constituency have been bombarded with leaflets from the New Republic, PM, the League for Democratic Action and others of like kidney."

Quarry Of Purge

Mr. Krock said it had not been determined that Smith was the quarry of an organized administration purge, but that numerous New Dealers were out against him and that there was evidence that the large group of government clerks in Alexandria had been "infused here and there with the argument that they would please the President by retiring him."

The dirty dishonesty of the deliberately false assertion that Smith was promoting "disunity" in proposing that unions be compelled to abide by the ordinary laws against extortion, coercion and racketeering appears not to have caught the attention of Mr. Eleanor Roosevelt. That lady did not permit to go unchallenged, however, a report by the Dies committee that the Union for Democratic Action, the group which Mr. Krock says participated in this smear against Mr. Smith, was a subversive organization. When one of her pets was smeared, if it was smeared, that was a very different matter. Krock erred slightly in calling it the league instead of the union, but these little horn-rimmed, four-man ideology groups calling themselves leagues, unions, foundations and the like, invite confusion.

In determining Smith's attitude and the probable meaning of the vote some recent correspondence between him and William Green may be helpful. I will have to abbreviate the exchange, but I will not tamper with the meaning.

Green accused Smith of offering legislation designed to decrease production and efficiency and to take from labor social gains obtained by years of sacrifice and effort. He referred to the AFL's pledge to refrain from strikes, a pledge which has been violated many times, and to the workers' industrial war production and conservation record.

"You have never emphasized a single virtue of organized labor," Green wrote, "but have constantly condemned and denounced it."

Persistent Attitude

Smith replied that Green's persistent attitude in defending the bad as well as the good in unions had done more to destroy the respect and support of the American people for the industrial unionism than he could do in a lifetime of legislative effort. "That racketeers and gangsters dominate and fatten on many of your locals is a fact well known to you," Smith wrote. "If you have ever publicly condemned any of them, I have never heard of it. On the contrary, you have publicly abused those who have sought to preserve the respectability of unionism by eliminating such characters. You have blessed with equal fervor the bad and the good in unionism. Public opinion will no longer tolerate boycotts, jurisdictional strikes and unconscionable initiation fees which, as you know, are prevailing practices, protected and encouraged under present AFL policies. If the time ever comes when you are ready to purge from your organization the evils which are bringing it into public disrepute I pledge you that you will have no more sincere advocate than myself."

On this record and right under the guns of political unionism's strongest fortification, Smith beat a professional unioneer, four to one, on a day when Green and his executive council were holding their deliberations amid the stench of that notorious corruption which constitutes AFL unionism in Chicago.

tion, I infer is a "feeler" for public opinion. It is my opinion, and the opinion of all those I have contacted that the best to cut it out. Stores are advertising "Shortage of paper," and if this is no joke, the newspaper can save fully 50 per cent of this tonnage and then have better papers.

And the Atlanta dailies, as well as other cities, they are filled with about 40 per cent more articles, as the minds of the people are now centered on winning the war and not particularly interested in society, weddings, etc. You can help save materially by cutting out the stuff.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

VICTORY GARDENS AGAIN This dad-blamed business of the Victory Gardens is about to get me down.

It all started innocently enough. I commented on the fact that the buses these days were filled with liars busy lying about the size of the tomatoes and the length of the string beans in their Victory Gardens.

I pointed out that these liars were so expert they had the fishermen and hunters, our best liars before the advent of the Victory Garden, sitting in corners gnawing their nails and growling.

Then there arrived a package from three young ladies at LaGrange, Ga., the Young sisters, who sent a sample of their Victory Garden beans. The doggone beans were 22 inches long and the Young sisters were nominated as the only truthful Victory Gardeners in the state.

The Young sisters didn't know the name of their beans, they having obtained the seed from some friends at Smyrna, Ga.

My friend, R. W. Lester, from Fayette county, said they were called "Poor Man Beans" because they supplied a man so much for so little effort. He said they were easy to gather as one could carry them in like stave wood. Mr. Lester is a real gardener, not a Victory Gardener although he sounds like one.

I would have denied it all but the beans were on my desk. All this brings me up to a letter from a gentleman with the United States Department of Agriculture.

"LAZY HOUSEWIFE BEANS"

This letter, from the U. S. department office at Athens, was as follows:

Dear Mr. McGill: I noticed that you did not get all of the names for the long beans that you mentioned a day or so ago. I am not a gardener or fisherman, but I have seen these beans 32 inches long.

These beans in Virginia are known as "Lazy Housewife" as I found out on a visit to Petersburg, Va.

There is one other vegetable that should be grown more than it is and that is the "Healing Squash." This is a variety of squash that grows some three feet in length and about three and one-half inches in diameter. When you want a "mess" of squash you cut off the bud end as much as you want for that meal and the squash heats itself and goes on growing. You can repeat this as long as the squash holds out. One or two of these vines is usually enough for a family. Eaten raw this vegetable has the flavor of a sweet potato.

Mrs. Tom Gash, who lived next to you on Myrtle street, happens to be my daughter, and she can answer for my character. Very respectfully, LEROY C. HART.

Mr. Hart, it is a good thing you put down such an excellent character reference. Your letter would indicate that you are nothing but a dad-gum Victory Gardener. And maybe a fisherman, too. Your denials would have done you no good without that character reference.

THAT HEALING SQUASH Your story about the healing squash will, I believe, be repudiated even by your character reference. I showed that story to one of our fishermen liars and he gnashed his teeth with rage because he hadn't thought of such a fine lie.

He said that he once had a special breed of chickens from which he could just break off the legs when he felt like eating fried chicken. He said it didn't hurt his spirit but his spirit, as new legs grew right out again and the chicken didn't mind. But it made him mad when he read about your healing squash. I think the trouble with this Victory Garden business is that the fishermen and hunters must be going into the business of Victory Gardens. It is just too much to expect that amateur gardeners would become such fine liars in one year.

It is very discouraging to me. I go out and look at my Victory Garden. The beans were named by rabbits. The tomatoes were discouraged by the drought. The Golden Bantam corn was stunted by the same drought. The peppers look feeble. The potatoes haven't come up and it looks as if they won't.

I can't find a single thing in that garden to lie about.

I am about ready to spring a story about my dog fraternizing with the rabbits, but I am not ready with that.

It is plumb discouraging. Mr. Tom Glenn has produced some tomatoes that are as large as eggplants, but he is a professional gardener and not a Victory Gardener. Still, it is discouraging to see that tomatoes can grow as large as the Victory Gardeners claim.

This letter from Mr. Hart is too blame much.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My Dear Louise: If you are determined to make some spending money for yourself, there are countless ways to do it at home—and you'll have the advantage of being your own boss.

This sounds like one of the sucker traps, common a few years ago, that offered the bait of "easy money in your spare time." Most of those advertisers were sweatshop swine who paid their victims about 60 cents a day for doing $10 worth of needlework. There is no profit for you in the other fellow's racket.

I can't tell you what to do, but I can give you an idea. The sure way to make money, in good times or bad, is to produce something that nobody needs but everybody can afford. Most of America's newer fortunes were built by cheap luxuries.

All you need to start is an idea. Few of us who buy shell macaroni as a food would suspect it of having a most profitable use. But Martha Covin, a girl who lives at Black Mountain, N. C., has a shrewd imagination. She punched holes in the imitation shells; found a way to give them lustrous colors; fitted them together in pairs, and strung them to make a necklace.

Macaroni beads may not sound appealing, but the first New York merchant to see a sample ordered 30 dozen.

Evidently the beads sell well, for nearly all of the earlier buyers have sent repeat orders. All orders have come in response to personal letters, and some merchants have bought without seeing a sample.

Martha couldn't do all the work herself. Her parents help at times, and girl friends and neighbors who drop in lend a hand for an hour or two. Even the cook helps out—at so much a string. You can estimate the output from the fact that four electric drills are kept busy drilling holes in the shells.

In ordinary times, the hard part of industry was the selling. But now, when so many staple articles are unobtainable, merchants are eager to buy anything that will sell. They've got to find new things or go out of business.

I have no idea what you could make, but I can give you a hint. There is an ever-increasing scarcity of attractive buttons.

Love, DAD.

Some 170 nurses from Georgia, most of whom are expected to be graduated early in September, will go immediately into the Army and Navy nursing service, Miss Durice Dickerson, executive secretary of the State Nursing Council for War Service, said last night following a meeting held here by the council.

Miss Dickerson, who at the same meeting was appointed nurse deputy of Medical Emergency of the OGD for Georgia, announced graduate nurses under 40, who are single and in good health, have been classified as eligible for Army and Navy nursing service, provided they are not doing hospital duty considered essential to the schooling of nurses.

As the OGD nurse deputy, it is the duty of Miss Dickerson to make a thorough census of the state nurses, county by county, and give orders for duty in case of an air raid or other emergency requiring nursing service on a big scale.

Dr. Bowdoin, State Health Officer, Dies

Former Grand Master of Georgia Masons Succumbs.

Dr. Joe P. Bowdoin, former grand master of Georgia Masons, and for many years prominently identified in state public health work, died last night at a private hospital.

Dr. Bowdoin, long an official in the offices of the State Board of Health, resided at 1140 St. Augustine place, N. E.

Survivors include his son, Dr. Dan Bowdoin, well-known Atlanta physician, and associated with the State Health Department.

Stricken Yesterday.

While not in excellent health, Dr. Bowdoin went to his office daily. He was stricken at his office yesterday and taken to a hospital.

Bowdoin was born at Adairville, in Bartow county, in 1866, and was widely known in that section. He was graduated in 1889 from the old Atlanta Medical College, which later became the Emory Medical College.

Following his graduation, he practiced as a country doctor for nearly 30 years in Bartow and surrounding counties. He served during World War I as a major in the public health service.

After the war he became associated with the State Health Department. He was deputy state health officer, directing the division of maternal and child health.

He was editor of the department's monthly publication, "Georgia's Health," and at one time edited and owned a newspaper in Adairville. He also was president of a bank at Adairville for many years.

Active in Masonic work, Dr. Bowdoin served two years as grand master of the local lodge of Georgia Masons, as well as grand high priest of the grand chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of Georgia.

He served many years on the board of the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Association, and was a trustee of the Masonic Orphans' Home at Macon.

Other survivors are his wife; three daughters, Mrs. T. N. Ray, Norwood, Ga.; Mrs. Bess Bowdoin, and Mrs. W. J. Crouch; another son, Max M. Bowdoin, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Spring Hill, with the Rev. Firley Baum officiating. Burial will be in Adairville, Ga., with Adairville Lodge No. 168, F. & A. M., in charge.

Soil Program Is Discussed At Marietta

Farmers Urged To Save Seeds and Plant Cover Crops.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 7.—Some 30 AAA committee men met at the Marietta courthouse yesterday to discuss with leaders of various agricultural agencies fall soil-building practices, agriculture's effect on the war effort, how to meet the nitrogen shortage next spring, availability of conservation materials, and other current problems.

Brief talks were made by Robert M. Stiles, state AAA committee man; Ivan E. Carson, field officer AAA, and C. L. Veatch, district conservationist SCS.

Stiles spoke of the need of conservation on the farm in order to meet the higher production goals. "We can't produce more, unless we conserve the fertility in the land," he said.

Carson touched briefly on the recent nitrogen shortage and the possibility of it becoming more acute next year. He stressed the use of cover crops in meeting this shortage. Carson remarked, "If we grow our own nitrogen, there won't be any shortage, and it can be done."

The advantages and disadvantages of various methods of carrying out fall soil-building were brought out by Veatch, who urged that farmers save lespedeza seed this fall and vetch seed next spring, pointing out that if the seed are available, they will be planted. "A number of farmers complained last spring of the high cost of lespedeza seed," said Veatch, "but if the farmer, himself, has the seed to sell, the high price would not concern him."

The afternoon session was conducted by Frank H. Pope, county administrative officer AAA, and O. P. Perry, SCS.

Requests were made by committee men for SCS plans on their farms, after the functions of the plans were explained by Perry. Pope discussed the availability of conservation materials through the AAA.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Dora Carmichael Reid, of LaGrange, manager of the Terrace hotel; one sister, Mrs. Walton Walker, of LaGrange; four nieces, Mrs. R. H. Clark, LaGrange; Mrs. Walter Daniel and Mrs. Ben Freeman, both of Atlanta; Mrs. Annie Roberts, of Bonham, Texas; one nephew, Gus Reid, of Selma, Alabama.

North Frowns At Attack On State Schools

Rev. Lloyd, Pastor in N. Y., Views Talmadge as Menace.

Georgia, with its high rate of illiteracy as compared to many states and the attack upon its educational system which has lost the university its standing, is not looked upon with high respect in upper New York state, said the Rev. I. Vincent Lloyd in Atlanta yesterday.

Mr. Lloyd is a native Georgian, a former resident of Tyne, in Fayette county, where he is now visiting his father. A graduate of Mercer University and afterward of a divinity school in Washington, he was called five years ago to the pastorate of the Baptist church in Hilton, N. Y., a town not far from Rochester. He previously had held pastorates in Elko and Perkins, small Georgia towns. He is 30 and looks younger.

Articles Hurt State.
"Articles in Time and that one by Rufus Jarman in the Saturday Evening Post have not caused northerners to hold a higher opinion of Georgia," he said.

"All the nation knew Huey Long, who was in the national spotlight. Talmadge is not so widely known in the north, but I am frequently asked about him and the educational situation."

"Georgians, I think, should be more concerned about their educational system. I think they are not really aware of the danger that confronts them for years to come."

"I'm not thinking wholly of the university. Georgia's secondary schools are lagging behind. They are not keeping up with modern times. After five years in New York state I can see the difference. But up there the schools have more money and better trained teachers and better transportation facilities."

See Governor as Menace.
Lloyd still feels himself a Georgian and though he did not care to discuss politics he said he looked upon Talmadge and what he stands for as a menace to the state.

"How is a southerner received up there?" he said, in answer to a question. "Most cordially and kindly. After I had supplied the pulpit in Hilton for a few weeks I was asked to accept the pastorate. I married a Rochester girl and my stay among the Yankees has been most pleasant. It is a fine country and they are fine people."

American Aid To Australia Called 'Trickle'

MacArthur Described as Tied Down for 1942 or Longer.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 7.—(AP)—General Douglas MacArthur was described today by Norman Stockton, war correspondent of the Melbourne Herald, as an "offensive-minded" leader who "has been placed in the position where apparently he cannot take the offensive."

"The United States has considered that this country (Australia), in the wider strategy of global war, must play a secondary role for the balance of 1942—perhaps longer," Stockton asserted.

At the same time an authoritative source, whose identity could not be disclosed, declared that the greatest part of Australian defense forces are Australian, not American, and that both the Australian and American public have been somewhat confused concerning the real facts of the situation.

American equipment which has been sent to Australia is a "trickle" which could be replaced by three days of United States war production, he said, adding that in the main Australia was carrying her own load.

Australia has been told too many rosy stories about United States military aid," Stockton said. "The American press has fed the American public similar lines."

"Only by the presence of carriers in the same time and space we are able to smash the initial Japanese attempt to invade the north. Those carriers may not be available again. I believe there are all the elements of grave danger to Australia unless the policy that is sacrificing this area because of demands from other fronts is changed in the immediate future."

"We and the people who are our allies have got to realize the grim fact that there is no possibility of an offensive from this country until real material aid is forthcoming."

Former Officer Appeals Demotion

Former Police Lieutenant I. P. Jones yesterday appealed his demotion by city council's police committee to Fulton county superior court after a trial charging Jones with an altercation in Cobb county.

F. Lee Evans, attorney representing Jones, asked the court to set aside the demotion, contending there was insufficient evidence to sustain the committee's findings. Immediately after the committee's action, Jones was inducted into the armed services and has been in camp for more than a month.

GEORGIAN UP NORTH—The Rev. I. Vincent Lloyd, formerly of Tyne, Ga., now a Baptist pastor in Hilton, N. Y., says interference with Georgia's university system is not raising northerners' opinion of Georgia.

Sumter County Revokes Three Beer Licenses

Failure To Comply With Grand Jury Edict Given as Cause.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. AMERICUS, Ga., Aug. 7.—The license of three beer dispensers in Sumter county have been revoked, Judge John S. Wood, director of the Brewing Industry Foundation for Georgia, said this afternoon. Wood said the action was taken by the board of Sumter commissioners following a meeting with that body this afternoon.

The places of business whose license have been ordered revoked were listed: W. E. Abbot's Place, located just outside the city limits on the Atlanta-Albany highway; Smith Service Station, near Abbot's, and Rock Inn, also just outside city limits on the Ellaville highway.

Action was taken by Judge Wood and the county commissioners following failure of certain operators to comply with an edict by the grand jury that the sale of beer on Sundays be stopped. Judge Wood said that the closing of these three places was a forerunner of what is to come in Sumter county unless conditions in places where beer is sold are improved.

Hotel Workers To Be Trained In Competency

Plans Worked Out To Prevent Shortage of Efficient Personnel.

Guests of Atlanta hotels and restaurants will be trained in "college graduates" trained in courtesy, efficiency and skill, it was announced yesterday when a committee from the Atlanta Hotel Men's Association, in co-operation with city and state federal educational systems, laid plans for school to train competent personnel.

Edwin Muford, of the Georgian Terrace; L. L. Tucker, of the Ansley, and Wilmer Davis, of the Hampton, composing the committee, are working out plans to prevent a shortage of trained personnel for Atlanta as has developed in some other sections of the country.

James Cannon, representing the State Board of Education, and Thomas W. Clift, of the city board of education, have conferred with hotel men about arrangements.

Under the plan, guest rooms, bath rooms, restaurant facilities, and front offices will be set up and trainees will get first-hand instruction by experts. A registration fee of $1 will be required of all those who matriculate, and it will cover the entire cost of the course.

A similar school has been conducted in Florida, and H. R. Cole, coordinator of the Florida school, will come to Atlanta to launch the program here.

Stephen Styron, secretary of the Atlanta Hotel Men's Association, said occupancy of rooms in Atlanta has increased 15 per cent for the first five months of 1942 as compared to the same period in 1941.

Post Office Worker Stabbed

John W. Brewer, 46, of 80 Twelfth street, N. E., a custodian at the old post office, suffered stab wounds in the abdomen, chest and face last night following an argument in the basement of the Post Office building, police reported. He was admitted to Grady hospital, and physicians reported his condition as only fair.

Police assigned to investigate the stabbing arrested John S. Dailley, another custodian at the post office. Dailley is being held at police headquarters on suspicion of stabbing.

Hundreds are coming to town to work and live, need used furniture and have CASH to pay for it. Advertise in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Ex-Mate Comes To Blonde's Aid After Shooting

Dice Girl Is Held on Charge of Murdering Friend.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The former husband of Mrs. Eleanor Williams, 25, platinum blonde night club dice girl, came to her aid today as a coroner's jury recommended she be held to the grand jury on a charge of murdering her friend, Gordon McNaughton, 32.

The ex-husband, Clarence Williams, 36, a telegrapher, embraced and kissed Eleanor at the inquest, talked to her privately and patted her blonde head comfortingly, then told reporters: "I still love her. I'll do all I can to help her."

Williams divorced her in 1939. She told police she left him and their daughter, Jacoby, 6, to McNaughton, a postal substitution clerk who once pitched for the Boston Red Sox.

Another blonde in McNaughton's life, Mrs. Dorothy Moos, 27, in whose hotel room he was shot to death yesterday, testified that Mrs. Williams burst into the room, argued and fought and, after Mrs. Moos had once snatched a pistol from her, shot McNaughton.

Mrs. Moos told investigators she had left her husband several weeks ago for McNaughton.

Mrs. Williams did not testify at the inquest, but told police she took the weapon from Policeman Barney Towey, an old friend, while he slept in a hotel room after they had been out to a night club.

Police Commissioner James P. Allman suspended Towey.

N. C. Blanket Firm To Get Army-Navy 'E' Award for Efficiency

To Be Presented Monday.

The Chatham Manufacturing Company, of Elkin, N. C., now producing 15,000 blankets a day for the Army Quartermaster Corps, will receive the coveted Army-Navy "E" award for efficiency in War Production Monday.

Brigadier General Clifford L. Corbin, director, procurement service, office of the Quartermaster General, will be the principal speaker at the presentation exercises. In addition to presenting the "E" banner to the company, General Corbin also will present emblems of efficiency to each of the firm's employees.

Of the first 10 awards to be made by the Army to manufacturing concerns engaged in war production.

In commenting on the Chatham award, Major General Edmund B. Gregory, the quartermaster general, stated that the company is the only concern in southeastern United States engaged in making blankets for the Army. He remarked that he was especially interested to learn that 140 employees of the company are now members of the armed forces and that many veterans of World War I are employed in the plant.

Pointing out that the Army is now the largest purchaser of blankets in the world, General Gregory lauded the Chatham Company for "helping the Quartermaster Corps deliver the goods."

Only George John Dasch and Ernest Peter Burger were not made ready for the final act in the drama that began in mid-June when the saboteurs rowed ashore from U-boats with explosives and elaborate plans to dynamite the American war effort into fiery ruins.

Dasch, ringleader of the eight, and Burger reportedly saved their lives by turning government witness and volunteering invaluable information. The two "informers" are understood to have received a long prison sentence from the military court.

As the hours of the reprieve sifted quietly away, Dasch and Burger were removed from the block of condemned cells and closely guarded against any attempt on their lives by the doomed Nazis.

Extra Guards.

The jail wing where the Nazis have been kept since July 7 last night turned into an Army fort as extra troops, machineguns, rifles and tear gas bombs were brought from a nearby arsenal to insure against a last-minute escape or attempt to break out of the prison in each of the cells with the prisoners to prevent suicide or injury.

Six Army chaplains visited the prisoners to give them final rites and the peace of God. The Army mess attendants prepared the last meal for the condemned. The men smoked ceaselessly but only ragged fragments of conversation and the heavy footfalls of the patrolling soldiers broke the quiet in the brightly lighted row of cells. Beneath the barred windows troops stood at the ready, and bayonets caught the light from the windows in the courtyard.

Vaudeville Stars of Yesterday Get a Break in the Movies

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 7.—(INS) The new Lloyd C. Douglas novel, "The Robe," carries a spiritual message so appealing to Frank Ross that he up and bought it. He paid $100,000 and if the film version does the business that "The Magnificent Obsession" and "The Greenlight"—the other two Douglas best-sellers—did at the box office, Frank has made an investment for himself.

He tells me that Jean Arthur, his wife, will not be in the picture because there is no role for her. But Frank is nothing if not ambitious. He sees Gary Cooper, Spencer Tracy or Errol Flynn as the star. Since "The Robe" and "The Magnificent Obsession" and "The Greenlight" are all about the same story, he has made an investment for himself.

By Louella Parsons.

Men," his two previous pictures, clicked he will probably get himself set with a major studio that will give him the talent he needs.

The posthumous fame of General Billy Mitchell, who warned that Japan was our dangerous enemy in the Pacific and pointed out the strategic importance of Alaska, has been rumored as a movie subject for months. The first definite word comes from Samuel Bronston, Columbia producer, who has bought the official life story written by Isaac Don Levine. William Hawks discussed the story when he was at RKO, but since he is no longer connected with that company and Bronston has paid $100,000 for the Levine book and has permission of the Mitchell family—well, this is it. Bronston was associated with Major James Roosevelt when Jimmie was in the movie business.

The vaudeville headliner of another day will be lined up for "Something to Live For," a motion picture financed by Lou Lurie, Sol Lesser and Jules Stein. George Jessel's complete show with Jack Haley, Buck and Bubbles, the De Marcos, Ella Logan, and I suppose Kitty Carlisle, have all been signed on this basis for a movie. Fannie Brice is being jockeyed and there will be other top names. Now all the gentlemen have to do is sell the idea to a major studio. Since the show went over big, both in Los Angeles and San Francisco, that should be the least of their worries.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD

COLLECTED AT RANDOM: The Glenn Ford-Eleanor Powell romance, starting as a publicity stunt, has developed into the real thing; David Selznick is asking no chances with Ingrid Bergman having an unbecoming haircut. He has elected Sydney Guilaroff to do the job; Red Skelton is getting a new and fatter contract at M-G-M, due, of course, to his increasing popularity; the New York Theater Guild is dickering with Lillian and Dorothy Gish for Ketti Fring's Broadway play, "Mr. Sycamore." Dorothy, according to last reports, although down to a mere 90 pounds, is much improved in health; the little child wonder Maxine O'Brien, who is appearing in "Journey for Margaret," will ask to have her name changed to Margaret. That's all today. See you tomorrow! But Gloria Parker, Lina Park, New York, says: "The more bombs we get the more bombs, they'll get. The more we buy, the more Japs will die."

Dr. Brady Points Out Fallacies in Fiction

In a gentle rebuke a professor of English literature who noticed a remark I made about fiction—professing that any normal, intelligent person should be able to read novels and to separate the chaff from the wheat.

The professor's point only strengthens my belief that reading novels tends to give the reader false ideas of life—except mystery stories which do not purport to carry a message or show how any class or kind of people live. If one runs out of mystery stories good enough to entertain, there are always biographies or other interesting books available, books which convey knowledge of life, the world, history, science and not just the imaginations of a romantic mind.

Trying to analyze my dislike for fiction I come at once on one reason—the familiar trick of the trade, using a brandy or whisky flask to restore the injured man, dying to life so the character can finish the chapter. This is just one trick of the trade. Another is not quite so common nowadays as it was a generation ago, but it is as silly as the brandy flask trick—keeping the hero or heroine hanging fire for several chapters while languishing in the throes of "brain fever" (so-called or not) which the morose reader must believe resulted from shock or strain or other great emotion.

I could count scores of similar devices practiced by fiction writers, and too often they get away with it. The use of such trickery makes it impossible to read such trips, at least for me. Some extracts of a recent novel called "Rain" or some such name, printed in a digest magazine, held my interest for several pages. Finally the author, carried away with himself, counted in with the effects of a rainstorm in California a number of illnesses and some deaths from pneumonia which the glib novelist ascribed to dampness, wet feet, snow, cold or something of the sort.

Perhaps the professor and I look at the question from widely different viewpoints. The professor probably sees in such stories a kind of art or skill which I can't appreciate because it is beyond my comprehension. And I stumble upon these irritating tricks of the trade and toss the book away in exasperation, while the professor finds no fault with the author for tracing pneumonia to dampness, for to him that seems reasonable enough.

I'd agree with the professor's contention that normal, intelligent persons who are able to separate the chaff from the wheat may derive no false ideas from fiction, but how can you be sure the book will be read only by such persons?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Iodine for Soldiers. Your splendid work evidently comes along to training camp with us. It seems as though half the camp is taking your Iodine Ration and almost every day I hear some fellow telling of help he or one of his family has had from advice given by you. (Sergeant F. S.—). My trouble now is dandruff.

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for pamphlet on "Care of the Hair and Control of Dandruff." People who take the iodine ration regularly assure me it prevents premature graying of hair. There is enough iodine in the new anti-graying hair vitamin compound to supply the daily requirement of the body.

Just Quilt. I am 36, and since I was 18 I have been taking pills, salts and other strong laxatives every night, sometimes two or three times the regular dose. A year ago I sent for your booklet on constipation habit. I read it twice, became convinced you knew what you were talking about. I just quit, and after the fourth day, precisely as you said, everything became regular and everything has remained regular since—I have never taken another dose of physic and don't believe I ever shall. (M. A. N.)

Answer—That's the secret—you have to get the right psychology about physiology. Victims of constipation habit send 10 cents and stamped addressed envelope for booklet, "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene."

MY DAY: The Queen's First Press Conference

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.—Yesterday afternoon, with the rain falling intermittently and gray skies, the Queen of the Netherlands came to Washington. It was an unpublicized visit, so even had the weather been kind, there would have been no opportunity for crowds to gather in the streets.

However, the Queen was cheered several times along the way to the White House and by the few people who could see her shake hands with the President, as she reached the car near which he was standing.

The President had arranged to drive the Queen around the circle in front of the capitol, so she could get an idea of the buildings. Then we proceeded slowly between the lines of Marines and soldiers, with bands playing at intervals all the way down the avenue. The Queen bowed and smiled at the soldiers standing at attention. Wherever people braved the rain to stand on the sidewalk to greet her, she responded warmly. I sat in the car in front of the President and tried not to block the view of my two important companions.

On reaching the White House, we stood under the awning while photographs were being taken. Then we went into the diplomatic room to present the members of the cabinet and the members of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the senate and house to Her Majesty.

After a brief few minutes upstairs, she went at once to greet the diplomats who were waiting for her in the Blue Room. Then the Queen was allowed a little peace and quiet until we met again for dinner at 8 o'clock. She is a very punctual lady and was ready before our last guests had come in. I think we were on our way downstairs at one minute after 8.

After dinner we had one newsreel, and then an ensemble from Hampton Institute sang spirituals and a few modern songs for three-quarters of an hour. This ended the entertainment and, after a brief chat, we all separated to meet again this morning in time for my press conference.

To people unaccustomed to meeting newspaper correspondents in different countries, it must seem somewhat of an ordeal to face about 30 women, but I think the Queen enjoyed her experience. She is a gracious, friendly person and I think everyone who meets her responds to these qualities.

Count Your Inches Instead Of Pounds

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you ask a woman with such a beautiful figure that she has become known for it the world over, what most women need to learn, the answer will be "How to walk." The main thing, she is convinced, is to "draw a lead on where you are going and walk straight toward your objective." How can a woman expect to walk well unless she acts as though she knows where she is headed?

That is Gypsy Rose Lee's idea, and a good one. As no doubt you know, she is the author of a popular murder mystery and also the star of a new Broadway show. Her perfect figure is no longer news. For some years now, she has enjoyed a successful career on the strength of her curves.

Naturally, Gypsy has given considerable thought to what makes for symmetry. How to walk, she has concluded, is highly important. In fact, it is essential to showmanship. Give a woman lovely proportions and let her walk, and what happens? You can't even tell whether she has a waist!

Right along that subject, Gypsy says she is glad that there isn't enough rubber for girdles. "The rubber girdle," she declares, "is the ruin of the average figure. When a woman has a lot of rubber and stays to hold her up and flatten her out, she doesn't even bother to hold herself up. No matter how good a girdle she buys, it can't do all the work. Of course, she looks sloppy. These new rubber-less girdles are a very good thing."

I'd like to tell you about Gypsy's figure. It is just as good as anybody ever said it was. And one of the reasons is, she watches her measurements. Instead of scampering to the scales several times a week, she measures every day. "Women weigh too often," is her comment, "and they don't measure often enough. The measurements are what count." Hers are lovely: Bust, 36 inches; waist, 24 inches; hips, 36 inches. Whenever she approaches what she calls the "most-see-go-on a balanced diet and says, 'I lose like that!'"

She drinks a quart of milk a day and likes fruits, vegetables and everything that goes to make up a balanced diet.

Her other tip on keeping weight perfect is to become more active whenever you feel yourself gaining too much. Since she loves to dance, walk and work around her farm, she finds plenty of exercise without taking calisthenics.

Here is a diet that will make it easy for you to control your weight in the warm weather:

Railroads Face Need of More Engines, Cars

Reserve Equipment Is About Exhausted, Says Army Official.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A warning that without additional locomotives, cars and other equipment the railroads might be unable to carry the mounting American war load came today from the chief of the new Army Transportation Corps.

Brigadier General Charles P. Gross said the carriers were approaching "a rather serious and even critical condition," and that next year would bring even heavier demands than 1942.

"The railroads already have about used up their reserves of surplus equipment," he told reporters. "Right now because of ship sinkings they are obliged to use some 1,200 locomotives to haul oil which were available last year for other traffic movements."

"Since 1939, car loadings have increased 27 per cent, ton miles of freight 80 per cent and passenger travel has nearly doubled. This year will see 34 per cent more ton miles of freight moved than in 1929 and 48 per cent more after 1918, the peak year of the first World War."

Gross complained at a press conference that new equipment had not kept pace with increasing traffic, but expressed hope the situation eventually would be relieved. He said the Association of American Railroads was "geared to war better than any other agency."

Officer Indicted On Larceny Count

Supernumerary Policeman A. J. Mahs, under suspension from the police department on charges of drinking, yesterday was indicted by Fulton county grand jury on charges of larceny after a trial for disposing of a city-owned pistol valued at $24.

Mahs was called upon to turn in his equipment when the suspension order was served, but he did not have the pistol. He told police officers he had loaned the pistol to a man whose whereabouts he does not know.

The grand jury returned a true bill against him. Those listed as witnesses on the back of the indictment are Chief Hornsby, Captain L. J. Carroll and Lieutenants C. F. Allen and C. D. Hardeman.

Retired 70-Year-Old Farmer Tills 15 Acres for Exercise!

By EDNA CAIN DANIEL.
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

QUITMAN, Ga., Aug. 7.—The family thought J. H. Edmondson, merchant-farmer of Morven, ought to retire and sit in the shade awhile. At 70, after a useful and active life, they felt he had earned a rest. He amiably agreed and retired from the store. After sitting in the shade a spell he noticed a nice 15-acre field that looked like it wouldn't get planted because of a shortage of labor.

Mr. Edmondson loved maybe a little exercise wouldn't do him any harm and he edged around and got out the mule and plowed and planted the field. It didn't seem to hurt him and he cultivated the field, while watching his corn and peanuts grow, he forgot the aches and pains that are common at 70.

Last week, Walter Long, another farmer, brought in some ears of corn the longest of which was 12 inches, and he wanted to know if there were other farmers in the county that had corn 12 inches or longer and he left some money to buy drinks for any and all 12-inchers.

Yesterday Mr. Edmondson came to the Free Press office with six ears of corn from his field. One is 13 1/2 inches long, four are 13 inches and one is 12 inches. He said the long corn is the little cob variety and mighty good, but his corn is a cross between little cob and hickory king.

Yes, he has been growing this variety 15 years. He recalled it was 15 years ago he was telling Uncle Lawrence Lawson, 82-year-old Confederate veteran, about
